AC/DC's Angus Young and Brian Johnson know where to turn for the best information and stories on the world of heavy metal — Hit Parader, of course. "Why am I always sweating so much in those Hit Parader photos?" Angus asks. "Because you're the hardest working man in show business," answers Brian.

METALLICA

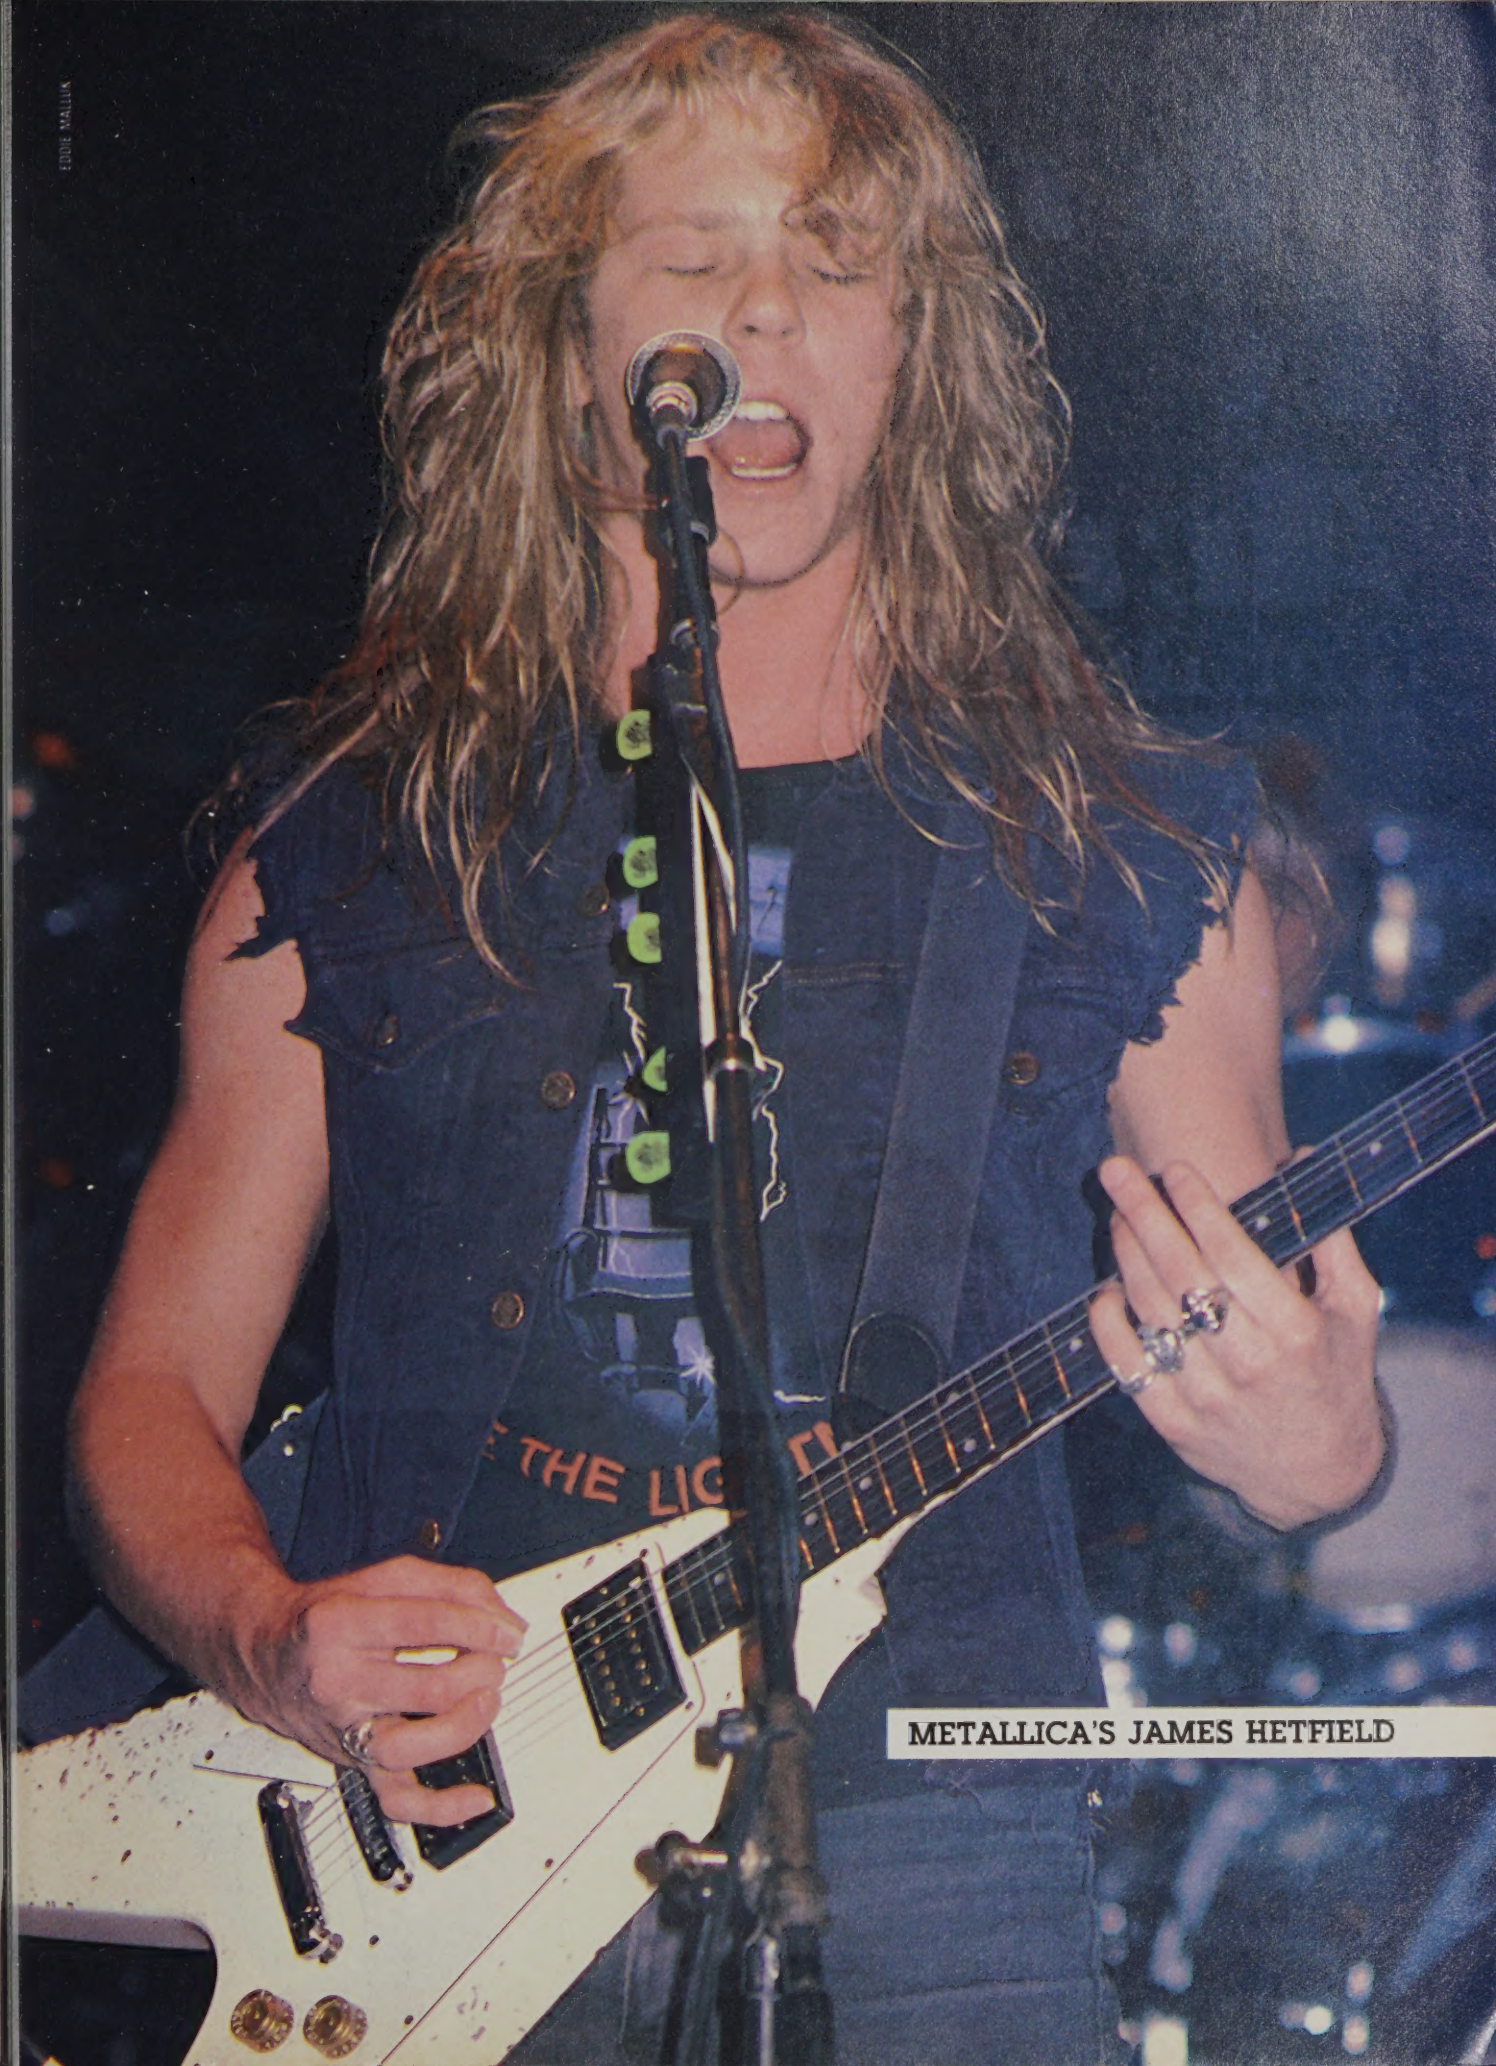

MASTERS OF METAL

Don't listen to so-called experts. If you do, then you'll still believe that a pure power metal band that doesn't rely on makeup or wild on-stage theatrics can never make it in today's "sophisticated" rock world. And if you do believe that, just don't tell the guys in Metallica. These four West Coast wildmen have managed to convert their fondness for slashing metal chords and sandpaper vocals into one of the major success stories of the year. Their second major-label release, Master Of Puppets, has shown that music played with conviction and skill is still what the metal masses want.

"We've always done things our own way," drummer Lars Ulrich stated. "Sure, we've heard that a group that looked and sounded like ours would never be anything but a cult band. That made us laugh because we didn't care. We never considered how popular we could become or how many albums we could sell. We made the music we liked, and if other people could get into it, then that was great. If they couldn't, we understood. But it is really nice that the new album has done so well. The record company was saying, 'Hey, give us short songs this time.' We didn't, and the people liked it — that's got to say something."

Lars and Kirk: "We've always done things our way."

Hot Shots Photo Contest

ROSS MARINO

Can you take a picture like this?

Alright all you photo junkies. You've seen the best rock and roll pictures in the world every month right here on the pages of Hot Shots. Now here's your big opportunity to see your own pix on our pages.

Do you think you've got what it takes to become a successful rock photographer? Well, prove it to us by sending in your entries in our first annual Heavy Metal Hot Shots photo contest.

There will be two categories: black and white, and color. If you want to submit color shots of your favorite rockers, make them Kodachrome slides. Those are the type of pictures we run each issue in Hot Shots. If you want to submit black and white shots, send us prints of any size: 5"x7" or 8"x10" are the two most popular sizes.

Winners will be announced in an upcoming issue of Hot Shots with the winning photos being printed with your name! Prizes, including photo passes to the show of your choice, will be awarded to the winners. Unfortunately, we will not be able to return any of the submitted photos.

PETER MAZEL

Shortly after the Yardbirds' demise in 1968, Page put together a "New Yardbirds." But following the suggestion of Who drummer Keith Moon, he soon changed that group's name to Led Zeppelin.

Over the last two decades, few figures have played a more important role in shaping the sound and style of the metal empire than Mr. James Patrick Page. From his earliest days with the Yardbirds, through his golden age with Led Zeppelin, and right up to his current accomplishments with the Firm, Page has survived a myriad of personal and professional problems to emerge as the quintessential guitar hero. Let's now take a photo journey through the years with the one and only Jimmy Page.

When Zeppelin broke apart following Bonham's death in 1980, it took Page nearly four years before he again took the stage during the ARMS Benefit shows.

EBET ROBERTS

Despite the Firm's success with their second LP, Mean Business, reports continue to circulate that Page may soon be getting back together with Page and Jones to reform Zeppelin.

VAN HALEN

NO LOOKING BACK

With the release of 5150 a few months back, a new era began for Van Halen. The war of words that had been raging in the press since the departure of David Lee Roth, was replaced by new sounds which emphatically proved that this version of Van Halen packed the same sonic wallop as its illustrious predecessor. Sure, arguments will continue to rage concerning whether new man-about-town Sammy Hagar can ever replace Diamond Dave at the VH helm, but the bottom line is that with Edward and Alex Van Halen, along with trusty side-kick Michael Anthony, still on the scene, the mighty VH rock steamroller is still one of the most potent musical forces around.

"There's nothing wrong with change — as long as you improve from it," Alex Van Halen stated. "And that's what's happened to this band. We've changed, but only for the better. When you listen to the new album you're hearing a band that's really testing itself. We're totally happy with the music we're making for the first time in a long time. There's no compromise in this group. We know what we want and we know how to get it. What it boils down for us now is that if we think something sounds good, then it is good. After some of the problems we've had in the past, it's great to be able to have an attitude like that."

The Metal Report

The surprise firing of Vivian Campbell by Ronnie James Dio was sparked, according to those close to the scene, by Campbell's unwillingness to break off his relationship with his girlfriend. It seems that the lady had a penchant for referring to Ronnie in less-than-glowing terms to anyone who would listen — even going so far as to call the band "a living version of Spinal Tap." When Ronnie asked Vivian to get rid of her, Campbell refused, thus causing his unexpected expulsion from the band. Fortunately, both Dio and Campbell landed on their feet with the guitarist beginning a solo album, and the band replacing Vivian with former Giuffria axe slinger Craig Goldie.

MARK WEISS

Will Bad Company be reforming? In the wake of all the Led Zeppelin reformation rumors, it seems that Firm vocalist Paul Rodgers contacted old cohorts Simon Kirke, Boz Burrell and Mick Ralphs about getting back together if Jimmy Page were to leave the Firm. Apparently all agreed that such a situation would be a great deal of fun (and potentially profitable), so a tentative September 1 date to reform was given. The next step remains with Page who must decide how serious he is about reforming the mighty Zep.

The war of words between former bandmates Edward Van Halen and David Lee Roth rages on. A few weeks back, Roth was overheard when he loudly made some cutting remarks about Edward's wife, actress Valerie Bertinelli. While there was never any love lost between Roth and Bertinelli, David's savage attack infuriated Edward to the point where he was thinking of taking legal action. "It's not enough he's making a fool of himself, but he's got to start picking on my wife," EVH said. "I feel sorry for him, and I hate to think what might be next."

VINNIE ZUFFANTE

Twisted Sister's Dee Snider admits to being a bit perplexed over the band's next career move. Following the disappointing performance of their Come Out And Play LP and tour, Dee and the boys have been reconsidering their career direction. "It's crazy," he said. "We're caught in the middle. The real metal people think we're too pop. The pop people think we're too metal. What do you do? I think the only thing we can do is stick to our guns and be what Twisted Sister has always been

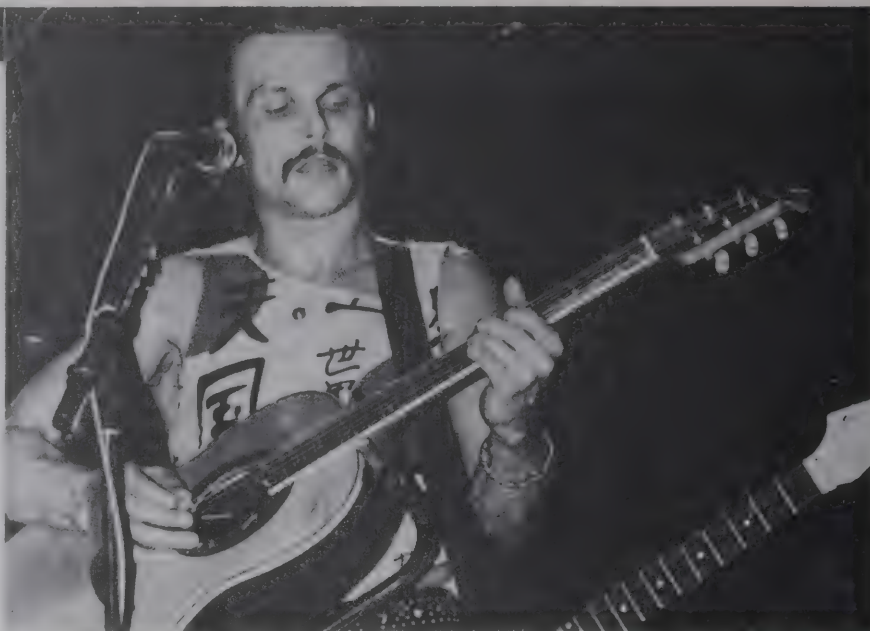

The often discussed feud between Don Dokken and guitarist George Lynch has evidently taken a turn for the better. "Yeah, it has," Don said with a laugh. "We just don't deal with one another unless we have to. There's nothing particularly hostile about that. It's more that we realized that we're both better off that way. We'll never see eye to eye on a lot of things, but we also know that we need each other musically. It's a marriage that stays together for the sake of the kid our music!"

Ozzy Osbourne admits that working with his new band has totally revitalized his career. "Playing with Jake, Phil and Randy has made me feel ten years younger," the Oz says. "Before, I was working with people I felt comfortable with — old British farts just like me. I realized I needed some new young blood that would kick me in the ass. That's exactly what they've done, and I love them with all my heart for doing it."

The Metal Report

Rumors continue to fly that the Scorpions are having some internal squabbles over guitarist Rudolf Schenker's decision to split his time between writing material for the Scorpions' new LP, Passion Ruler, and working on the new album by his brother Michael. Those close to the situation report that the band — especially vocalist Klaus Meine — is annoyed over Rudolf's split-allegiance. "The Scorpions must always come first with us," the vocalist stated. "That is the attitude that got us to where we are today."

EBET ROBERTS

Deep Purple's Roger Glover recently told the Metal Report that he feels the pressure will be much greater on the band this time around. "When we recorded the last album (Perfect Strangers) we expected it to be successful on the curiosity factor alone," he said. "We knew there would be interest in it by people who just wanted to see if we could still do it. Now that we've proven we can, they'll be expecting a great LP this time. It's our goal not to disappoint them."

Iron Maiden are currently putting the finishing touches on their next LP, Somewhere In Time. The album recorded in Compass Point Studios in the Bahamas, will break new ground for the band, according to vocalist Bruce Dickinson. "We're never satisfied to sit back and depend on formulas," he said. "Every time we're trying to evolve and grow. This album is certainly no exception. There are some new and exciting ideas, and I'm sure our fans will find it very interesting, to say the least."

PARTY ON TOUR WITH...

We've all heard about the lunacy that follows Ozzy Osbourne around wherever he goes. Well, here's your opportunity to get a behind-the-scenes look at Ozmania as we go partying on tour with the madman himself.

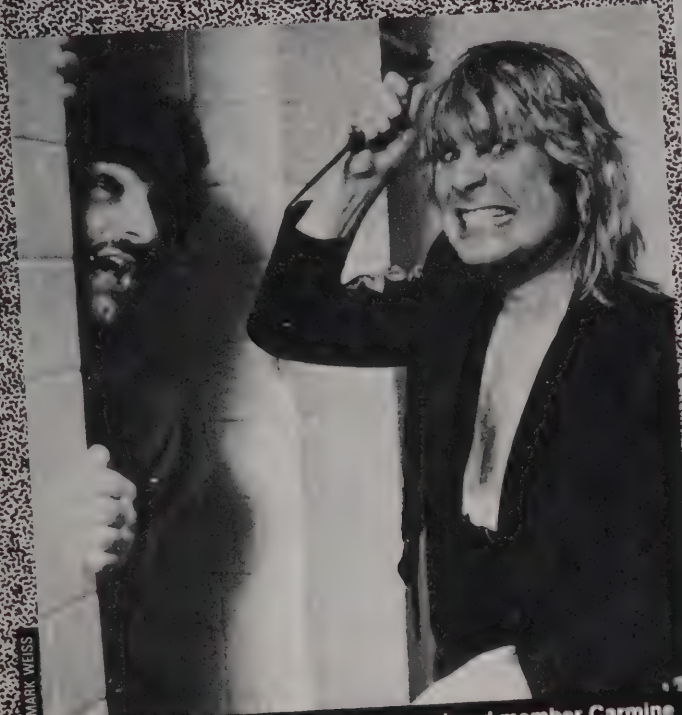

"When we wear these hats nobody recognizes us," Ozzy and Vince explain.

"Jake and I are on the Haagen-Dazs diet."

OZZY OSBOURNE

MARK WEISS

Ozzy has a warm greeting for former band member Carmine Appice.

BOB LEAF

"Oh Ozzy, you are without question the sexiest, most talented man in the world," wife/manager Sharon tells an obviously pleased Big O.

BOB LEAF

The Oz gets friendly with a fan. Hubba hubba.

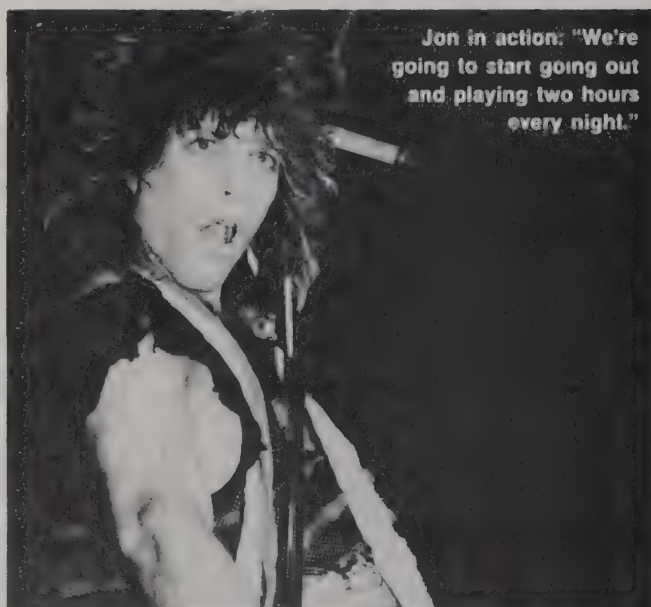

BOB LEAF

Ozzy and Heaven's Allan Fryer strike a friendly pose after tying for first place in the "Chubbiest Singer in Metal" contest.

Jon and the boys: "We feel we're ready to really hit the big time."

Jon in action: "We're going to start going out and playing two hours every night."

Jon Bon Jovi knows that 1986 could be his year. He knows that the pressure is on, but he couldn't be happier. With the release of his third LP, and the beginning of his first headlining U.S. tour, this good looking New Jersey native feels that all the pieces are falling into place for him. Yes, he knows that the eyes of the rock scene (as well as his countless female admirers) are on him, but Jon likes the idea of working with the world focused squarely in his direction. His ability to write hard rocking anthems as well as sensual ballads has made him a multi-talented threat who just might emerge as rock's next big "cross-over" superstar. It's not an idea that upsets him.

"I really haven't considered getting into things like acting or television," Jon explained. "But who knows? Anything's possible. Right now my only concern is making the best music I can. That's my first love and my true love; anything else at this point is really secondary. I put a lot of blood, sweat and tears into every note I write, and I don't have the ability to start thinking about other aspects of my career and still give my all to the music. Maybe other things will come along later in my career, but all I want to do now is get on stage for two hours every night and rock my ass off."

KINGS OF TURBO METAL

A true champion will always respond to a challenge, and no one can deny that Judas Priest remain the metal champions. Despite the glut of young bands who have recently attempted to usurp the British Bashers from their rightful place atop the metal mountain, Rob Halford, Glenn Tipton, K.K. Downing, Dave Holland and Ian Hill have once again shown that they remain the most awesome group around. With their latest LP, Turbo, reestablishing their stellar credentials via such instant classics as Parental Guidance and Turbo Lover, these metal legends seem intent on showing that young bands may come and go, but true legends just keep on going forever.

"It's very rewarding to know that many bands respect Judas Priest and what we've accomplished over the years," Tipton said. "We've always tried to be as encouraging as possible to any young heavy metal band, and that respect has always been returned in kind.

We know what we're capable of doing, and we never look upon another band as competition. We can remember when there were only one or two metal bands touring anywhere. That's why we welcome every band that wants to join us in playing the greatest music in the world — heavy metal."

PAUL MATKIN/PHOTO RESERVE

Glenn Tipton: "We've always been as encouraging as possible to young heavy metal bands."

BRAD SKOGLIS

K.K. Downing: "Turbo is a very positive album because it was released in spring, and we didn't think we should sing about death at that time of year."

A SPECIAL REPORT

BUTCH STAR

Wendy O. Williams: The original High Priestess Of Heavy Metal has recently returned to the scene with a new album and tour.

WOMEN IN METAL

A SPECIAL REPORT

No less an authority than Kiss' Paul Stanley once said that you need balls to play heavy metal. What follows are seven talented young women who would like to make Stanley eat his words. They're only the most visible of a new generation of women who know that anyone anywhere can rally to the heavy metal cause.

Mary Ann Scandiffio of Blacklace: "I think a woman's voice is better suited than a man's for singing heavy metal. Guitars play in a high register similar to a woman's voice."

THE METAL CHAMPIONS

Throughout its history, heavy metal has been a medium dominated by its superstars — those bands capable of selling millions of albums and filling the biggest arenas. We now take a look at some of the true champions of the metal realm.

Def Leppard: Their LP, Pyromania, has sold over six million copies worldwide since its 1983 release.

AC/DC's Brian Johnson and Angus Young: Their 1980 release Back in Black holds the metal record for sales, with over eight million copies Kiss' Gene Simmons: When the band was at its commercial peak in 1976, they performed in front of over two million people in a six month period.

Led Zeppelin: Their albums have sold over 20 million copies throughout the world.

Iron Maiden's Bruce Dickinson: The band's Powerslave world tour lasted an incredible 13 months, and took the band behind the Iron Curtain as well as to the United States, Europe, Asia, Australia and South America.

Diamond Dave may look a little disheveled, but his shades help keep everything in their proper perspective.

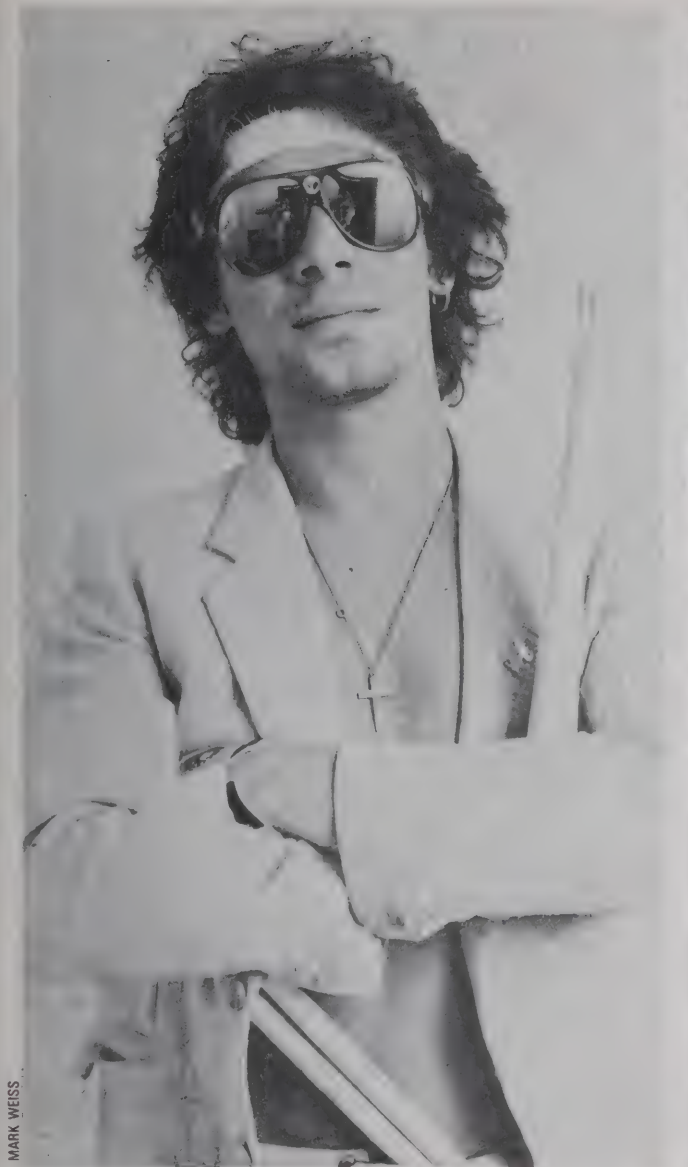

Nikki Sixx knows that his eyeballs could melt you on the spot.

MADE IN THE SHADES

It's said that the eyes are the mirror of the soul. So what does it mean if you can't see someone's eyes? In the world of heavy metal, a pair of cool shades are sometimes more important than a hit record. After all, you've got to look good — even if you ain't got no soul.

MARK WEISS

Alex Van Halen's glasses hide his look of anguish as he castrates himself with his own drum sticks.

VINIE ZUFFANTE/STAR FILE

Bad Company: A reader wants to see them get back together.

What's the story with Bad Company. They were one of my favorite bands in the mid-70's, and now I hear they might be getting back together. That would be great. I could dig that. But what would happen to the Firm? Maybe if Page leaves that band, he'll get Zeppelin flying again. Yeah!

Iron Mike Hogan
Brooklyn, NY

Why do people enjoy dumping on Motley Crue. Don't they realize that the Crue is the best band ever? They look great and make the best music in the world. Nikki Sixx, if you're reading this, I love you.

I loved your photo feature on where the guys in Kiss are now. I was a little disappointed, however, when you didn't really say too much about Peter Criss' new band. I hear he's in a group called Balls Of Fire that's got a chick lead singer. How does the band look? I'd sell my soul to see a picture of 'em. I figure if anybody's gonna have a picture of Pete's new band, it'll be you guys.

Alright already! You want Motorhead? You've got 'em.

Marillion are stars in Europe. They're not that big over here. People should listen to them because they'll like what they hear. That's for sure. Fish, their singer, has one of the best voices around, and they write songs that really have meaning.

I love heavy metal, but why can't you put pictures of some of my other favorite artists in your great magazine. Sure I dig VH, Crue and Kiss. But I'm into Duran, Bowie and Sting too. They look great, and they make good music too. Metal rules, but there should be a place for every kind of music in your magazine.

How come you run photos that look fuzzy? A friend of mine says it's because you're cheap and run copies of original shots. Somebody else said it wasn't really your fault, but that your printing press sucked. Which one's the truth? I like Hot Shots a lot. In fact, it's my favorite magazine. I hope you're not being cheap.

Marillion: Why aren't they big in America?

Dave Holland: The backbone of Judas Priest.

I'm a huge Judas Priest fan. (Actually I'm not that huge, I'm only 5 foot-4). How come we always see pictures of Rob, K.K. and Glenn in mags, but never that metal piledriver, Dave Holland. He's the backbone of Priest, and it's time he got some recognition.

Kuni Takeuchi: The new Japanese hot shot guitarist.

Recently I heard an album by a Japanese guitarist named Kuni Takeuchi, who's a 21-year-old prodigy from Japan. I don't know what he looks like, though I hear he's into some pretty strange stuff. Could you find a photo of Kuni for me? Thanks!!

A few issues back, you ran a photo feature on Iron Maiden called Live And Death in 3/4 Time. There was a picture of Dave Murray and Adrian Smith in there where it looked like they were wearing bathrobes. I thought that was real funny. I'm glad to see that certain bands don't take themselves very seriously. That's a problem with a lot of bands. They think everyone has to worship at their feet. It's great to see a band like Iron Maiden — the best metal band around — laugh at themselves.

Maria Osserman
Minneapolis, MN

I think you've got to cover more new bands in Hot Shots. I love your New Faces column, but I'd like to see more of those bands. Maybe you can run a big color feature on them and run some live shots so we can see what they look like on stage. Keep up the good work.

How come you wimps try to force crap bands like Def Leppard or Van Halen on us? They're not metal — they're garbage. Wise up or I'll never buy your rag again.

People say that pictures are worth a thousand words, and when it comes to your mag, that's true. I love your photos of all the big stars of heavy metal. Just one request, run more on Ratt.

TWISTED SISTER

Okay, we all know that 1986 hasn't been the best of years for Twisted Sister. Their Come Out And Play album and tour failed to generate as much fan interest as its platinum-coated predecessor, Stay Hungry. But despite their temporary setbacks, Dee Snider and the gang remain one of metal's most entertaining and crazy bands.
